Founded in London, but focused exclusively on Indian law, ALMT Legal has major talent bases in Mumbai and Bangalore, and founded its New Delhi office in 2010. A year later the firm lost a number of partners when a breakaway group founded Clasis Law, taking with them ALMT's then "best friend", the transport law giant Clyde & Co. Despite this blow, aviation remains ALMT's strongest suit, with an impressive list of clients in the sector.

PEOPLE & PRACTICES

Mumbai-based Sameer Tapia is the founding and senior partner of the firm and head of the real estate and litigation practice groups. His recent engagements have involved representing airlines against claims made for loss of cargo and in respect of matters in Indian High Courts and tribunals. Co-founder and partner emeritus as of September 2012, Ananjan Mitter was described as "very active" in the aviation sector and highly recommended by peers. This year marks the 10th anniversary of Aliff Fazelbhoj's decision to merge his existing practice with ALMT, and today he acts as senior partner and focuses on tax and M&A matters.
